"A Child's Christmas in Wales"

Though the weather in Appleton was balmy by Wisconsin standards, children from eleven to nearly six-times-eleven gathered by the fireplace to hear Thomas Dylan's nostalgic recollections of "A Child's Christmas In Wales." Read by Scott Crane, a local favorite who has appeared in numerous Attic and Riverside Theatre productions, the well-seasoned audience was soon smiling at memories of snowy lanes, mince pudding, and family get-togethers ...

when uncles gathered before the fireplace in the parlor and aunts surreptitiously sipped too much wine.

Joining Scott for this first-annual riverfront tradition were Tom Bloy and Carol Jegen reading a variety of Christmas prose and poetry.

The perfect ending to an evening that began with a holiday dinner of breast of turkey, skewers of grilled shrimp, rice pilaf, and asparagus spears, followed by trays of delectable sweets and treats prepared by Becky and her crew!
